S-FACTOR

- S-Factor is more than a scent or masking agent... It's a genuine fish feeding stimulant and attack response trigger!
- Engineered after years of research by a marine biologist working on Australian salt and freshwater species, S-Factor combines a complex matrix of amino acids and salts PROVEN to attract, excite and stimulate predatory fish. S-Factor makes fish bite and encourages them to hold on longer! Use S-Factor on all soft and hard lures, jigs, squid jags, flies... even natural baits!

Getting started ...

- The key to getting more bites using soft plastics is to firstly match your lure to the most common food source for the target species – then match your jig head to both the water depth and current movement in the area you are fishing.
- Most bites will come on the drop while your lure is sinking/swimming down on slack line...

RIGGING YOUR SQUIDGY TO BE SNAG-FREE IS EASY!

STEP 1.

Insert point of suitably sized wide-gaped worm hook through the centre of the nose of the lure body, exiting through the "chin" so that the link of the hook shank will sit comfortably inside without buckling the lure.

STEP 2.
Gently pull the hook through until the eye sits on the nose of the lure. Lay the hook across the lure body and measure the points of entry and exit (mark these points for best results).

STEP 3.

Bend the body of the lure as needed to insert the hook point through the centre of the belly and out through the centre of the back at the measured points. Keeping your hook central ensures an effective lure action. Once rigged, weight may be added as shown or using a variety of other techniques.

Remember to Limit your Kill – Don't kill your limit !

I'd like to thank Steve "Starlo" & Jo Starling for the use of additional images and rigging diagrams in this presentation. I'd also like to thank Kaj "Bushy" Busch for his mateship over the years which has inspired me to continually question my fishing in order to think outside the box & continually lean....
